Ms. Andrzejczak takes a comprehensive approach to her employment advisement practice, which includes drafting employee handbooks, providing guidance on best practices for onboarding and offboarding, and analyzing unique contract issues such as non-disclosure and non-competition agreements. She has counseled businesses across a number of industries, including hospitality, technology, marketing, accounting, design, and construction. Ms. Andrzejczak has significant experience defending employers in the administrative agency complaint process and federal and state litigation concerning discrimination and retaliation, wage and hour, and employee mobility disputes.

Ms. Andrzejczak excels in her employment advisement practice largely due to her background as a litigator for both small and large companies. As a previous judicial clerk to the Honorable John Daniel Dailey of the Colorado Court of Appeals, Ms. Andrzejczak has demonstrated competence in appellate advocacy and handled cases before the Colorado Court of Appeals and Colorado Supreme Court.

Ms. Andrzejczak prides herself on her strong work ethic and attention to detail. Through her tenacity and ingenuity, she cultivates legal strategies that produce beneficial results as quickly and cost-effectively as possible. Ms. Andrzejczak enjoys developing long-standing relationships with her clients not only to address the problems they may be facing in the present, but also to develop concrete steps to prevent issues from arising in the future.
